

Tree of Life

*A tree of life, its blossoms fair
Shining in the forest glade
From deepest earth to clearest air
A tree so bright, it casts no shade.*

*The tree, a pillar reaching high
Through the eons of the world
Where we evolve from root to sky
Our lives, like greening leaves unfurl.*

*The axis of three arcane lands
Revolve around this world tree.
Bridging these mysterious spans,
We embark on our sacred journey*

*The Under Realm where our ancestors
Dwell in peace with the High Faeries race.
The Bards still record the ancient lore, and Giants and Dragons keep their place.*

*The Middle Realm where nature thrives
Home of the elemental architects
Fairies, Spirits and Devas, and all that lives,
In holy wells, woods, or ancient cromlechs.*

*The Over Realm of spinning stars,
Throwing spears of celestial light,
Where archangels manage from afar,
Suns, planets, and moons eternal rite.*

*The tree whose limbs reach through the spheres,
Touching every thread of the universal web,
Who regulates the seasons and the years,
And cradles the newborn spirits of the dead.*